"Where Time Stands Still"
ARTIST STATEMENT
V isited cathedrals, monasteries, castles and manor houses. The architecture is all so rich and varied. All created on a base of something deeper and more ancient. The architecture does not just stand as a monument. It breathes. It lives. It is a living organism. It is a part of the landscape. It is a part of the soul.
The modern architecture of William North, the great architect of the 20th century, has been a constant presence in my mind. It is a part of the landscape. It is a part of the soul. It is a living organism. It is a part of the landscape. It is a part of the soul.
Bringing together examples of medieval architecture and a modern architect through several series including the series 'Where Time Stands Still'. Both work back to time, both with thought of the original. In the culture of the modern they are not just as an art form, but as a statement. It is a statement to the world. It is a statement to the world. It is a statement to the world.
